And if I knew that you were leaving I wouldn't have stayed so long I would have left so long ago
And if there really still was something left to say to you you'd realize just what is true How you made me blame you for everything you do cuz it can't be all my fault it still takes two to break apart the truth
I learn
I still learn every single day
Chorus: Must be some way to reach the sky (if I could) make things right
I know I'd give my life (if I could) there must be some way I could turn back the time (if I could)
make things right
I'd even give my life
And if knew what I'd be missing
In spite of all I had found I would have sooner figured out what would have made it so much better Having lived without a fading fear without a doubt
every single day
But there's always something left to salvage, so scrap it leave it all behind (If I could)
there must be some way
I could turn back time (if I could) to make things right I'd even die tonight
