Searching for the right words to write to you
In this letter I've adored...
All those times I never had a trace of hope
But when you're gone this is all going to be so hard
And after all I've been through
I'm finding it hard to describe

And if you ask me now, I will never breathe again
And if you ask me now, I will never breathe again

Even though you'll never quite understand
That just like silver clouds and gold
Golden mornings and the rain and lightening
You're about as perfect as they come
And after all I've been through
I'm finding it hard to describe

And if you ask me now, I will never breathe again
And if you ask me now, I will never breathe again
And its just so hard to say
Its just so hard to find
The feelings that you never had, the feeling that I have inside
And should I put it all to rest and give my second chance to live?
Again.
