Hold on tightly never worked for me
Show me where the door is cause I'm failing to see
Take your feet out watching you bleed out
I'm the worst at knowing when my curtain's been called

On my way
Out of the dreams I've made
On my way, I'm seeing I was always destined to be

Predictable and alone
Predictable and alone for the long run
You should be thankful that I'm getting on a train
That's heading straight out of your life again

Maybe I'm the champion of being alone

Saving your last glance, burning our last chance
Nothing's gonna stop what was always meant to be

On my way out of the dreams I've made
On my way, I'm seeing what I was always destined to be

Predictable and alone
Predictable and alone for the long run
You should be thankful that I'm getting on a train
That's heading straight out of your life again

You can't stop the earth
From spinning under your toes
You can't soak up the sea
Just like you can't stop what you were destined to be

Predictable and alone (For the long run)
Predictable and alone for the long run
You should be thankful
That I'm getting on the train
Heading straight out of your life again

Predictable and alone
Predictable and alone for the long run
You should be thankful that I'm getting on a train

That's heading straight out of your life again
You should be thankful that I'm getting on a train
That's heading straight out of your life again
