remember back in 93'
it was him and him and you and me we all hung out in the hallway remember our good old school yard days we didnt care about time or money we just had fun and played hookey we all got closer together we treated eachother like brothers but as the time went by, ive come to realise our friendships not the same theres really no one to blame

here we are, staring at
at the end of something good
here we are, staring at
at the end of brother hood
here we are, staring at the end of something good
here we are, staring at the end of brother hood we always had eachothers back no matter what differences we may of had we all went out separate pathes just thinking about it makes me sad why dont we go on our friends it isnt that bad, its at the end what about all those times brother hood is a crime.

at the end of brother hood
here we are, staring at
the end of something good

and all this time, ive been thankful for having friends like you it will never get to my mind, as you, this is what it comes to but i just have to face the facts that nothing in this world is really meant to last here we are, its where were at.
here we are again.

here we are, staring at
