The sun she was dying and going down slow
The clouds were bursting and bringing down snow
And all in all no one really cared to know
That the bitter end of summer was dying

Now I've watched a million dreams
Go up in smoke
And Lord the way I laugh and scream about it
It ain't no joke anymore
Anyway
Who spoke about it

The clouds went away and the moon came to stay
And the stars were sending down
Jeweled fire
And it shone through my window
And showed me the glow
Of Molly still flushed with desire

Now we would all like to close our eyes
And lick the snow as it goes by
Feel it in our faces
Hold a hand full of aces
And be the winner
When it comes time for us to die

The sun she was dying and going down slow
The clouds were bursting and bringing down snow
And all in all no one really cared to know
That the bitter end of summer was dying
