Meet in the morning, love, so you can see the light
I'm standing on the shore, you're standing all alone
Don't you wanna leave this all behind?

She says a lot of things I've never heard before I've done a lot of things you could see right through And I ain't so proud of it now

I can feel it so strong in my bones, I wish I could let it go

I wish you would be the light at the end of this tunnel and I'll be the sweep off your feet that you'll always remember
I wish you would come home

I'm saving it all for the love I can see in the city lights, She'll be the one screaming out, keeping you up at night,
Waiting for you to come home, waiting for you

I couldn't take you down, chewed up and spit you out
It made me a better man, 'cause you can never move, Holding your tail between your legs

Well I can feel it so strong in my bones, I wish I could let it go

And I wish you would be the light at the end of this tunnel and
I'll be the sweep off your feet that you'll always
remember
I wish you would come home

I'm saving it all for the love I can see in the city lights, She'll be the one screaming out, keeping you up at
night
Waiting for you to come home

And she sings, "oh, yeah"

And she sings, "oh, yeah"

And I wish you would be the light at the end of this
tunnel and
I'll be the sweep off your feet that you'll always
remember
I wish you would come home
