"Involuntary Emancipation"

This is my home now, I'm taking over.
These are now my walls, my children.
What once was your's and what you thought you deserved
is now being stripped away by me.
They are finally free from your disease,
you cannot infect humanity,
you won't affect their sanity, they are finally free.
To hell with you.
You promised nothing but the best for them.
But you became nothing but an outsider.

You had your chances, you blew it every time; giving up on what you once called life.
I am taking this into my own hands and freeing them
from your alcohol enslavement.
Enslavement.
Are you awake, or are you just breathing?
