It's a rainy day in Neverland
It's a blanket right above the sand
And it's marbles that play in the palm of your hand
And the lightening shadow chasing
And time's a wasting.

In my mind I can fly,
Over the mountains, through the clouds, to the stars
And in my dreams I can see myself as a child,
Day without end, world overgrown and wild.
Yeah, in my mind I can fly.

An alarm clock buzzin' my island away.
I'm sorry I gotta go but there is no time to stay.
Oh, but far be it from me to insight a riot of disbelief.
Yeah, the only way to dream is to close your eyes and make believe.

I can fly,
Over the mountains, through the clouds, to the stars
And I can see myself as a child,
Day without end, world overgrown and wild.
Yeah, you just have to believe.

And we all die a little every day,
Bright blue bending to the will of darker gray.
Yeah, and your glass is half empty anyway.
Oh but wait, yeah there may be another way.

Oh you can fly,
Over the mountains, through the clouds, to the stars
And you can see yourself as a child,
Day without end, world overgrown and wild.
Yeah, you just have to believe...

That you can fly
Yeah, you can fly,
Yeah, you can fly.
