He left me in the morning
The lights still on, and without warning
And as he went, I tried to call him
But I couldn't get the words out

My only one man, who's the fool?
And why is she crying?
My only one man, a fool for love
Is what I am

And if you meet me on the street
Will you look the other way?
Or will you smile and greet
As we start our separate days?

And now he's gone I must remember
To just wake up and draw the curtains
The table heaves, anticipating
A never ever meal for two

My only one man, who's the fool?
Look what I've broken
My only one man, a fool for love
I shouldn't have spoken

And if you meet me on the street
Will you know my hands are shaking?
And as we go our separate ways
Will you just wave and leave me breaking?
