generations go by
with the blink of an eye wanna be in the middle of it all never standing on the sides they were standing on the who's side are you on anyway i remember your face

i should have listened to what you said
you know i wish i did
but we can't go back to where we've been where we've been

go on look at what the consequences have made you come around here and not a soul's the same noone outside watering the flowers their inside waiting on the rain waiting on the lips are zipped have they lost their minds throwed in the towel and fade with the tides
i remember your face

and i should have listned to what you said
you know i wish i did
you know i wish i did
you know i wish i did
where we've been
where we've been
where we've been
