"The Clock At Midnight"

The ticking gets louder as it racks up with distance but as you speak it goes faint for you bring me out of reality and into a dream

Hurt its my heart when i must tell you its late for now the clock is staring into me i turn away
never do i want to leave this place for we created it
you and me

It's hard to say good-bye when all i want to do is talk all night and fall away into a deep dream

Words are hard to speak it's midnight
all means so much we could think of a million things but the time ticks on

The past goes ticking away futher away in time
it grows fainter
into a dull whisper

you amaze me
with you words
and the sound of your voice i could listen forever if it was my choice

how could i ever part for the ticking goes on along with the beating of my heart which beats for you and louder with every step.

I could talk all night

but it's midnight
