If I told you one day,
That I would never hurt you.
That I would be a promise I can't make If I told you someday,
That this could be true love forever.
I'll wipe that smile off your face.

If I made you cry 1000 times would you still take me back and I miss you and I swore to God I would never miss you if I told you I'm ok and all my friends are doing great without you here this letters so impersonal she said the words just seem to pour right off the page this is your break up letter I lied when I told you it's not you that it's me

this is your break up letter I'll set you on fire just to see the colors you could make

If I left you here for six long years your washed up you feel used are you jaded and I pray to God you don't hate me if I say I'll be home soon a broken heart and an empty room is all you'll find with a letter in the middle of the floor the words just seem to fall right off the page I try to scream but somehow I can't breathe

this is your break up letter
I lied when I told you it's not you that it's me
this is your break up letter
I'll set you on fire just to see the colors you could make

So tell me
so tell me what you're thinking cause I can't read your mind

so tell me
so tell me what you're thinking it's hard to see things clear behind your blackened eyes and I could make things right if all the stars aligned a different place a different time cross my heart and hope you die

the words just seem to fall right off the page I try to scream but somewhere I can't breathe I know I made my share of mistakes but you were the worst one the worst mistake I ever made
