I remember when he saw you
On the street where I first met you and your friends

You were drunk and only 15.
a You were scared cause you been hurt by older men.
Like a bullet hits the target
While the pain that you were fighting ? my skin
And I was ? by the silence
That no one care to see the teardrops on your chin.

Cause although you are not my daughter I love you

You were gasping for conclusion
and you thought Jesus was the part of the betrayal
The doctor say you fell out of the window last night.
But I believe you thought it was the only way.

Cause although you are not my daughter I love you
And if you ever question that Jesus loves you remember that he sent me, to you.

Now I am sitting here just waiting.
Right beside you where your father should have been.
You were smiling bravely at me
And I pray that you will now how much you mean.

Cause although you are not my daughter I love you
And if you ever question that Jesus loves you
remember that he sent me, to you.
Cause although you are not my daughter I love you
And if you ever question that Jesus loves you remember that he sent me, to you.
