"Life Carries On"

Miles and miles yet to my home
Years and years I haven't grown Living now seems like we are waiting awaken for dawn

Sorrow soon comes and bring its test Why fighting hard to make dreams last?
The happiness we search for makes us become slaves without rest

How many lines should I then write to make you understand?
How long should I wait for your sign to then realize that

One day, maybe someday the life that's been so distorted will come back to order And again, maybe again the fire that used to burn here will raise its flames And then I'll believe That life carries on What from the future will I get?

What kind of magic will it cast?
The hearts inner-fears taking our whole existence to end

Life carries on

And then for you life, for your soul I'll pray every night until life carries on
