I have seen her in the laughter and the loneliest of times

She is there before and after in the mother and the child

And for my part I've felt her heart beat in my mind

She is there in every season every feeling I have felt
She is each and every reason a beginning and an end
And in my soul I've always known her as a friend

And it seems to me that I have seen
Her face in every page I ever wrote
I even dream I hear her voice
In every word and every note
And all along in every song
I'm reaching for her hand to take me home
Take me home

We have seen ourselves as children, we were ageless in our youth
We have been forever's minions we are timeless, we are true
What we hold was never old and never new

Like a mystery in twilight when there's little there to see
Or a symphony in silence she is simple and complete Hand in hand I understand and I believe
