I shouldn't waste my freedom on your worries
I must lookout, my vision's getting blurry

But I've been lying sleepless until the light of the new day
Worried about how you're gonna change

Earlier tonight I was a stranger
In a fatal trance of lonely anger

Now I'm lost visions and beholding
As the precious minutes keep unfolding

So please don't fear, our love is ever changing
And our whole world could use some re-arranging

But I feel safest when I'm in your room
Where everynight your flower softly blooms

I just forgot the reason I've been crying
Feel so alive though I thought I was dying
