"Haunt You"

Here you are at the start, everything is so great
A new house, a new life, so absurdly safe
Got some kids, stupid kids, a wife at the gate
But something lurks, unseen, maybe something you ate

I died
I died
I died
I'll haunt you

Just like a bad plot, I won't tell you why
Under floor or in a wall is where my secret lies
I'll come for your family first, so set them free
In some way, you alone, have clearly offended me

I died
I died
I died
I'll haunt you

See I can't leave this house, for me it's far too late
If we're going to live as one, let's get this straight
I can trip you up just by, moving things around
And make you ethereal just like the hell I found
