Foul Deeds

Words: Dale Alpaugh, Music: Steve Horvath

(c)1989 The Zy Band

See the great Valdez (foul deeds) of Exxon sail along
so proud.

As a reef from out of nowhere penetrates her mighty
bow.

And the hell slick reaches out to greet all creatures
great and small.

And the hunger of big money has no sympathy at all.
Mighty Presidents of Exxon, my fist goes out to you.
May bizzare nightmares be plenty, and your sleeping
hours few.

Now you've blackened all our waters. You've finished all our whales.

But the only thing that worries you is gasoline sales.

My friends up in Alaska are reaching out to you, but the only thing

you tell them is there's nothing you can do.

You reap the heavy profits, you put it in the banks.

Relying on us good old boys who have to fill our tanks.

When they sought your mighty Captain, he could not be found.

He wasn't on the bridge when this whole damn thing
went down.

But they pushed the Valdez onwards through the darkness and

the gloom. Nobody paid attention so the tanker met her doom.

Step back now mighty Exxon, open your eyes and then you'll see.

You're pushin' tankers through pure waters to the pipe
that shouldn't be.
