its time to paint this college town its friday night we'll get all dressed up ready to go from bar to bar where we can meet some people that we dont know and let them take us home while you werent around, she slept on the couch with his room mates and no one there to hear her shout she said i think its best if i just left but they held her down instead

she said i think its best if i just left

she sits inside her room for days, tells no one else bout that weekend that she spent away the one that she wont soon forget cuz this fraternity scares her, tell and you wont live

with his room mates and no one there to hear her shout

she just cant seem to get away but shes not scared now, she slit her wrists to kill the pain

with his room mates and no one there to hear her shout
she said i think its best if i just left

when i get my hands on your i'll slit your throat with a dull knife i'll put my hand on the wound so you dont too soon and i'll put my knee on your chest and squeeze out your final breath

i'll look deep in your eyes so you know just who did this to you i'll hang you in front of my house so people passing by can see your corpse and understand that you have gotten just what you deserve
