So let me! Tell you a story about, two lovers so naive wasting time on something as sad,
as not having a clue 'bout what's going on.
Tearing each other apart, shredding them-self's into pieces.
Not even stopping to think. It makes me wonder.
"Tell me was it what she said, or her adolescent eyes,
That made you forget - you're nothing". "Tell me did
you scream"

So say you know my name, cause I am torn,
and I won't let this go

Observing you, there's something very wrong!
"He says, I am trying for, the last time,
to make you see what we are doing to our-self's.
So get those echoes, out of my head, whatever sanity I possessed is gone."

Fools of love unite,
let us hear your cries.
