So goodbye to another one
Even though I've just begun to know you

And love you don't think
But I'm thinking way too much
My mind is running wild
I can't surrender to your touch
So I'll lock you in these lines
And I'll come visit from time to time
It's such an easy place
So much safer face to face

So goodbye to another one
Even though I've just begun to know you
Seems to be a pattern here
On and on you have to give again and again

And love you don't think
But I'm thinking way too much
It's always way too late
Cause it's over before it starts
But I swear this time's the last
Until this time is finally passed
And I'll look back and smile
And call you up cause it's been awhile

So goodbye to another one
Even though I've just begun to know you
Seems to be a pattern here
On and on you have to give again and again

So listen girl you may just take away
All the things that I could never say
All the colors fading into gray
All the things that I could never say

And love you don't think
But I'm thinking way too much
Yeah, yeah, yeah

So goodbye to another one

Even though I've just begun to know you
Seems to be a pattern here
On and on you have to give again and again

And somewhere along the line
Something hit me something died away
Always seems it gets to late
Only I anticipate the end

So goodbye to another one
Even though you could have been the one
