Wake me up when it's over
It's something I can't live through
I'm starting my car
And I'm driving it right back to you
It's been such a long time
Strangers passing me by
Each face looking in at me
They don't ask me why
It freaks me out the thought of going
Through this life without you
I need you to help me make it through the night
The truth hurts more than the lie
Maybe things will get better
Before we drift away
I save whatever's left behind
For another day
It freaks me out the thought of going
Through this life without you
I need you to help me make it through the night
The truth hurts more than the lie
Now the snow is falling all around my car

Covering up the streets and the downtown bars

It freaks me out the thought of going

Through this life without you

I need you to help me make it through the night

The truth hurts more than the lie
