Darling in my heart
I know we'll never part
O darling
Your sweet heart belongs to me

Pretty birds may woo
And steal a kiss or two
But darling
Your sweet heart will still be true

I kissed you as you took my hand
O dear you're such a big strong man
Like a rosebud aching for the spring
I need to tell you once more

Darling in my heart
I know we'll never part
O darling
Your sweet heart belongs to me

Pretty birds may woo
And steal a kiss or two
But darling
Your sweet heart will still be true

Did I take you for a...?
Did I make another-
Another great mistake?
You're such a handsome charmer
But there's a hole in your armor
There's leagues of scheming sirens
Plying you with witchy sighings
Praying for a taste of your sweet...

I feel it to my soul
Dear your hands are growing cold
Oh darling that's a cheap heart showing through
The pecking bird did stoop
To steal a drop or two
But dear your bleeding heart
Belongs to me

Your pretty words are peeling
Under the rotting ceiling
You've got another face
The dirty walls are breathing
I've got a real sick feeling
Your secret trapped so neatly
Locked inside, your head's beneath me
Preying on the taste of your sweet...

A whipped and broken mule
Would crack from a trick so cruel
But darling you mistook me for a fool
Your gold digging bird will stoop
To swallow more worms than you
As her priceless hole spits out
The last of you

Darling in my heart
I know we'll never part
O darling
Your sweet heart belongs to me

Pretty birds may woo
And steal a kiss or two
But darling
Your sweet heart will still be true

O my charming nothing!
Let me tell you something
You made a Great Mistake
Did you think you'd lose me?
Welcome to your tragic movie!
You've let this screaming siren slip into your den of lying
Preying on the last of your sweet...
