zoom in to what turns me on a maiden in my liquid form brewing in the deepest of cauldrons baffled by the absence of sun grace and I had no relation caught me idling in a stream once she smiles then you're ever so eager to follow of all the roads that stretch in the wake before me I long to rise above all the seas that toss me to say hello

hello and welcome

blueprints on my vapor's tongue calling the ingredients grant me all the powers of water gild my heart with virtues of gold steeped in my amalgamation surface just to be complete upward flight when you know everything's as it should be

I long to rise above all the seas that toss me to say
hello

winter's quiet and every mile has double vision spring is calling reinvention to sing my name
