I don't dream anymore except for that one I had last week

Where I dug up a hole and buried myself so deep

Well I canceled my vacation for a weekend in hell

I lied and said I'm sorry friends

But I'm not feeling well

The devil shook my hand and said

It's always the living who envy the dead

He offered me his wine

I drank with him to pass the time

Then he showed me what happens when you live a lie

Then he showed me the place where good goes to die

The real hell is your life gone wrong and sleep without dreams

The real hell is your life gone wrong and sleep without dreams

I am desiring his throne made up of fire and brimstone

His lavish life of luxury

It fills my heart with such envy

But this place is not what it seems

And the real hell is your life gone wrong and sleep without dreams

The devil shook my hand and said

It's always the living who envy the dead

He offered me his wine

I drank with him to pass the time

Then he showed me what happens when you live a lie

Then he showed me the place where good goes to die

Then he showed me what happens when you live a lie

Join me in hell be my southern belle

Join me in hell

The real hell is your life gone wrong and sleep without dreams

The real hell is your life gone wrong

Then he showed me what happens when you live a lie

Then he showed me the place where good goes to die

Then he showed me what happens when you live a lie

Then he showed me what happens when you live a lie
