Now When I met you boy my heart was still underground
See them other boys they had let me down
I wasn't going to let you in,
I was gonna lock you out oh, but you broke through my thick skin and you cut me out

But lately I don't know
These city lights are low
And you're lost out in the cold
But in the end,
But in the end I still come 'round

So when you knock on my front door tonight
You come to take me out make me feel alright
Come on and wash me clean in the city lights
Let's do all the things that the old me likes.
Making more noise and colour than a spinning wheel
I promise myself not to forget how it feels

But lately I don't know
These city lights are low
And you're lost out in the cold
But in the end
But in the end I still come 'round
I still come around

You're a braver soul than I
'Cause I don't see no fear in your crystal eyes
And I ain't got no big ideas
I just want to keep you close, want to feel you near

But in the end, But in the end
I still come 'round
I still come 'round
I still come 'round
