Wake up, sorry I was sleeping again
I should of known better yea I get that a lot I'm walking out hope I can get myself a win
My face is getting redder hey I like you a lot
So why don't you come walk with me
It won't be bad, I won't get mad
But then again, of course, it's me
I understand, I won't get sad

I had always thought That things would come to me much easier till
I came to senses, about a year ago or two
And everything I'm not Came to be the coolest way to be and I noticed then things are easier to lose
So things were going fine Till the night that I met you and I knew that even till this day I can't forget the thoughts we spoke about
And from time to time
I like to ponder thinking deeply about Everything I want and how they're easier to lose now

Everything I meant, slowly changed and split in two so
The thoughts up in my head surely always came back to you and
How can I forget the disappointment that I made when I went on and on till the force of battles changed... and here I am

The other day I thought Once again that things have changed but I still gotta wait, till the time is right change the pace and
The ships blew away
The city torn into a million scraps and I still got away could this mean something for which I'm waiting and

Everything I meant, slowly changed and split in two so
The thoughts up in my head surely always came back to you and

How can I forget the disappointment that I made when I went on and on till the force of battles changed... and
here I am
