Another photograph another year to last with you another blackened heart and now you're torn apart we're through now you feel the burn of compromise and through these ashes i will rise i stare back through the flames into your eyes and you know she said

i won't wait another day
you found your own addiction have you finally run away to prove your own prediction when you coming home
better find a way you won't find your heart or leave me alone

another tear to cry

another kill goodbye i'll go another page to turn another bridge to burn i know i guess i always wanted you this way but you can't adore me through your pain now i stare back through the smoke and watch you fade

or leave me alone
