

Wanted, The "Replace Your Heart"

You know I never wanna hurt you
Don't know why I'd ever want to (Oh, oh, oh)
There's no comfort in another face
Are you gonna let it go to waste? (Oh, oh, oh)
I keep on trying but how can I find it
When they don't compare to you (No, no)

I'm running out patients, tired of imitations
Lookin' for someone to replace your heart
Everyone I talk to is just another not you
Makes me wonder how we're so far apart
I'm tired of imitations, running out of patients
Trying to replace, replace your heart

Must be crazy if I let you go
You were everything I need to know, come back home
Feels like I'm dying cause I keep on finding Every junction leads to here and I'm lost

I'm running out patients, tired of imitations
Lookin' for someone to replace your heart
Everyone I talk to is just another not you
Makes me wonder how we're so far apart
I'm tired of imitations, running out of patients
Trying to replace, replace your heart

Everywhere I turn it's a wrong direction
Everything I see is a wrong reflection
Might be me but I just can't replace your heart

I'm running out patients, tired of imitations
Lookin' for someone to replace your heart
Everyone I talk to is just another not you
Makes me wonder how we're so far apart
I'm tired of imitations, running out of patients
Trying to replace, replace your heart

I look through the crowds, call your name out loud
There's still no way to replace you
Every word, everywhere, everywhere, replace your heart

To replace your heart, replace your heart
