

White Wives

"Sky Started Crying"

Visit "Sky Started Crying" on MotoLyrics.com

So many things you told me when you were alive
With the kindness you carried in your careful mind
When we stay out and we get drunk to kill the moonlight
And we never go home like we said we might

And the sky
You were a lover and a fighter for the things that are right
When the war got too heavy you said we'll be alright
Till the cellphone started singing and its blinking red lights
Started sharing things that we could not unwrite
And the sky started crying [x4]

And it's beautiful in death the way we stay eternally
We just get set free

So many things you taught me when you were alive
With the kindness you carried in your careful mind
You were a lover and a fighter for the things that are
right
When the war got too heavy you said we'll be alright

And it's beautiful in death the way we stay eternally
And the sky started crying [x4]

Visit White Wives page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.