Out with the old, new summer blues
And wipe the dust off from my shoes
There's so much space behind your eyes
That I wonder....about the vagueness of your views

Don't leave me hanging on
For another night alone
In my dreams I see me running through the fields
My footsteps following my mind
It's funny how I change with time
As I'm watching, waiting for the sign
Of another night alone

The rise and fall of monotony
Is far too familiar to me
When the smoke rises to the ceiling
It makes me wonder....will it remember me?

Don't leave me hanging on
For another night alone
In my dreams I see me running through the fields

My footsteps following my mind
It's funny how I change with time
As I am watching, waiting for the sign
Of another night alone....

When rumors travel on the wind
And you don't know just where they've been
You know they're only careless lies
But you still wonder....you wonder why?

Don't leave me hanging on
For another night alone
In my dreams I see me running through the fields
My footsteps following my mind
It's funny how I change with time
As I am watching, waiting for the sign
As I am watching, waiting for the sign....
Of another night alone...
