I could tell you now, if all were lost I'd still be rich, if I had you. Cuz good times come and go, but if they left for good I know we'd make it through. And I hold you now, here in my heart. I hold you, everyday. Can't imagine life, any other way..... I call you my love, I call you everything, though time may wither us it won't wither the One thing that brought us to this place. The reason I see it all upon your face, this love. No matter where you are, I see you feel you hear you deep within my soul. And nothing in this world, can fill that void because it's you that makes me whole. I call you my love, I call you everything, though time may wither us it won't wither the One thing that brought us to this place. The reason I see it all upon your face. This love is something more than we both know, this love..... Someday I hope I'll understand just how you make me feel the way I do.
