saw you in your yearbook picture love at first sight, had to meet ya maybe not obsession but a feeling close to home starting talking in the chatrooms or a phone call when the nerve rose seems to me we were so close, but your so faw away and all the guys would tell me everyway to win her heart so i began to do it still dunno where to start please someone make the first move or im gonna lose my head looking at your pretty face ill beat my head against the yearbook

cause melindas the kinda girl who makes me feel like the rainy days outside my window aint for real (melinda)i got a blow up girl and named her after you cause when i see your senior picture i feel like im a freshman again

days went by i got to know ya thought of all the good times i could show ya everything about you so perfect in everyway your pretty eyes your little smile i was told she'd wait a while but impatience got me and ya sent me on my way in everything you did, i saw a little bit of me but once upon a times the only way we are meant to be like children on a playground im afraid to talk to you watching every move you make ill drop the petals on my yearbook
