I will tell you one more time everything is not so fine, My options running out We were cool just yesterday but now I have my doubts
I've got this figured out
Is there a side to take I'm careful where I step

Feel somethings going to break its strange it hasnt yet Now our crowd has done its time and now our patience ends

And now I think I see how all these lies tie in And you know you can't deny everythings been building up

Dammed with pretty smiles Hot emotions blowing up and now you've stoked the fire
If you could just forgive
Maybe we could still be friends instead you criticize Which brings another end

When all your backs are turned its plain no one can see All this bullshit piling up from this hypocrisy
And if you had a piece a shred of decency Maybe you could lock wrists once again
