Drank the mini bar dry
Gone to stare at the sky
Apologetically I should be departing shortly
Empty on the inside
Created love but it died
Left in the sun and it fried
The desert takes no prisoners
Wake from their dreams of escape
What a state I am in
But the plans that they hatch
Are a welcome despatch
Cos it's great to begin something

I should be playing a show
I should be out letting go
Not getting ready to stow away on mediocrity
A fear of flying
Doubled up I'm dying
Am I really shying from this opportunity
Comes and we waltz then she runs
What a state I am in
But we cherish the chance
Of a meaningless dance
Cos it's great to begin something

Was I a force for good?
Did I do all I could?
I feel I should have pushed my rationale more practically
Did I make good choices?
Did I heed the voices?
Making pretty noise ain't living
Technically speaking I'm already dead
What a state I am in
And that's why all this living went straight to my head
Cos it's great to begin
If I wake and I breathe
If I'm granted reprieve
I can keep on looking
I shall search on my knees
And these 88 keys

Are a place to begin
Something
