Here we are baby close enough to see each others truths
No more hiding from the pain or leveling out the proof And whatever we come to now, whatever bridges that burn down
Im right beside you

Here we are miles from the music and the mite
You used to rock me gently most every time I cried Cold weather to my bones crying all alone Oh, how I need you

Here we are I was taught that you can never see Who you really are from who the world expects you to be
And the closer I get to my shame and to this sad refrain
I know Im losing you

Still I cant bring myself to throw in this towel and let you go

So here we are sitting in this solitary place Standing up for ourselves and seeing if theres still a single trace
For better and for worse, but we never said those words
Who am I without you
