One man stands in the balance,
The stitch of all humanity,
Creating hate and up rage,
Without the trace of pity,
His shadow overtakes the weak,
Then over powers the bold,
watching all hope fall fall into darkness,
Our souls he tends to behold.
Seeing the world through his eyes,
And seeing what he sees,
Can make the man or break the man,
For he can our destinys,
His mind is only on one thing,
Being able to win
But this is not the story of one man,
So where do we begin.

This world is full of perfect people,
Their lives are perfect,

But they're so damn ignorant.

He's one of the chosen ones,
The chosen few,
Perfect in every way,
But different from you,
But if I had to chose,
I would chose to lose,
Cuz' I'm not perfect,
And that's what I chose.
This world is full of perfect people,
They're lives are perfect,
But they're so damn ignorant.
One man stands in the balance,
The stitch of all humanity,
Creating hate and up rage,
Without a trace of pity,
His shadow overtakes the weak, Watching all hope fall into the darkness,
Our souls he tends to behold.
