Within the light, I see a face I'm lost without time and without space Leaving what's been for another dream

There is no pain there is no shame
I want a space for another name
I need a place where the time goes on and on and on...

Within the light, I see a face I'm lost without time and without space Leaving what's been for another dream

There is no pain there is no shame
I want a space for another name
I need a place where the time goes on and on and on...

Within the light, I see a face I'm lost without time and without space Leaving what's been for another dream
