(M. Apicelli)

She says that I'm not alone
She says that it wouldn't be right
She says that I'm in her soul
She says that we all lose in life
But her voice is hollow in my head
Like the promises she made
(I) wake in the morning and am alone
My glass is empty, my heart is betrayed
A lifetime spent away is too much for me
Yet it's not enough to forget pain
Whose life is shaped by some destiny?
I try to tell her: her destiny's mine, but...
She says that I'm not alone
She says that it wouldn't be right
She says that I'm in her soul
She says that we all lose in life
She's lying (x4)
A silver spike through this avalanche
A rosy carpet of thorns
A grey blanket of Heather
Not the first person to feel the burn
She says that I'm not alone
She says that it wouldn't be right
She says that I'm in her soul
She says that we all lose in life
She's lying (x4)
She says that... (drum fill) (8x)
