"Party Girl"

they say you're nothing but a party girl just like a million more all over the world I know I shouldn't be raising my hopes so high but I have seen the hungry looks in their eyes they'd settle for anything in disguise of love seen the party girls look them over seen them leaving when the party's over they can't touch me now you say you don't mind

we're so hard to find I could give you anything but time give it just one more try give it a chance starts like fascination ends up like a trance you'll never be the guilty party, girl you know some day we can go hiding from this world maybe I'll never get over the change in style but I don't want to lock you up and say you're mine don't want to lose you or say goodbye I'm a guilty party and I want my slice but I know you've got me and I'm in a grip-like vice

we're so hard to find
I could give you anything I would give you anything I can give you anything but time give you anything but (time)
