I pray my oceans lush and deep, suns golden inescapably an earth that's green rich and healthy with winds like hardy ribbons flushing through my creaky brittle frame send the melancholy through my veins because for me to be this happy's a danger to the pain that keeps me thinking realistically to live in this society when light and dark are just of preference i would never try to hurt a soul.

because your my starlight light youre my star light beauty is to die yea youre the star light we only have to shine yea as the starlight im loving light

bapap

So lets share this flame and pale sunrise as the morning gives birth to our eyes we could chill and just sit naked and wait until the afternoon becomes a moon and star filled nite affection seen on satellite though we try we cant contain the gravity inside out hearts collide

starlight im loving light
