Verse 1:

She wakes up to the sun break tired from being out late headache still baked knows not where she is body feeling sore

from the floor
she is naked and tore lying there sleeping with him

Picks up all her cloths and she knows how this goes an emotion blow but she tries not to show all the feelings that are felt on the drive to her home that she knows

just a little to well

Chorus:

I want something more than this live by the moment life I've been living in Something worth fighting for something I can stand by with utmost devotion no matter how hard I try something falls apart and I'm back at the starting line so hard to just get by when your living day by day

Verse 2:

now she sits there she's wondering

she's despratly pondering the purpose of life and how it's supposed to be lacking inovation

no motivation needeles and pills to help set her emotions locked inside that she hides but the mirror on the wall doesn't know how to lie every time shes confronted with the past by the person in the glass she breaks down and she screams
