Just A Charade by Fien de la Mar
Just a charade - our love is just a charade Where is the time when you and I were close? I wore your rose
Just a charade - our life is just a charade
When we were young, we were so carefree
You and me, so happy, but now - a memory fading so fast
Although we thought that it would last

Time and again, we talked but time and again
No guarantees, no hope, just nothing soft and so much old
Just in a trance, it took that one stolen glance
We were as one, the world before us - so bright
How we tried, and how I cried, a last goodbye
You closed the door of love, yes, my love

Look at me - don't you see what you've done to me?
I tried so hard to mend the bridges that you'd broken
But we couldn't wait to feel the hand of fate
Now it's too late, but something in me tells me that you still love me

Just a charade, we had it made
Love's a charade, you know, you should have stayed
