(living in my) Fantasies

Staring through the window at a thousand city street lights flashing yellow in the night.
The on and off reminds me of the voice I hear beside me and the pain that it invites.
If I could see the future I might understand the reason for just giving up without a fight.

Why can't they leave me alone in my dreams, why
won't they just let me be - me?

The storyline is somewhere in between the need for someone and the need for letting go.
Just as you've expected, the hero gets rejected,
and the maiden steals the show.
The characters keep changing but my life is still the same and now my world is burning slowly.

Why can't they leave me alone in my dreams, why
won't they just let me be - me?

Fantasies are all I have to get me through the day
Fantasies are all I need to help me find a way
To stay alive, I've got to stay alive

As the keeper latch releases I feel a sudden breeze and then the dampness of the night.
Slipping through the casing of this empty life I'm wasting to an almost perfect flight.
The storyline was somewhere in between the need for giving in or putting up one good fight.

Now they can leave me alone in my dreams, now they can just let me be - free?

Fantasies are all I have to get me through the day
Fantasies are all I need to help me find a way
To stay alive, wish I could stay alive

Fantasies, I'm living in my fantasies. Fantasies, I'm dying in my fantasies!
