Stark and bare,
low winter light
I make do for shelter to see my breath most nights
I broke my ties with the folk at home
I weighed my heart with an anchor made of stone

Then it came to pass I find myself here
With you in my arms, no loneliness I fear

Thrown around , throw in a pound
Slow down, throw a penny to the man on the ground

The tar makes a blanket, it warms the stony earth
The scholars know knowledge, will show the world their worth
We the unwanted, who love these mortal souls
If there's a net made to catch us, it's riddled with holes

You my friend, you'll never falter
As long as you live, you'll never alter

Thrown around, throwing a pound
Slow down, throw a penny to the man on the ground

Thrown around , throw in a pound
Slow down, throw a penny to the man on the ground
