I'm feeling so depressed 'cause this time it's so damn strong. I'm searching your support 'cause I need to feel you closed. But something is changing now between myself and my full head. You take control and then you say "We have to stop". You think that I'm wrong. That I'm not so strong. You'll never change. You give me a deal. I know I can't steal your doubtful heart. You think that I'm wrong. Now I'm feeling so confused with the fear to be refused 'cause you don't want to be mine. It would be enough a word or a little caress to save my existence. But something is changing now between myself and my full head. You take control and then you say "We have to stop"...
