outside the window
skating in the street
two kids full of hope
one's me
take it to the edge
take it to impress me could've been anything, something

none of these kids
understand the victim
no one like me

Promises in poverty
that echo your past
try to fulfill the joke of who will laugh last but it never came true
not like I thought
two kids out of rope one gave out

there is no peace there is no justice only my rage, only my darkness

you can't run away
you can't run away let's face it
you can't run away
you can't run away from everything

I felt the child slip away as I grew into defenses you laid down in the dirt and made peace with the rain like no one knows your suffering or feels the same pain but everyone's the same, every one's the same not me. not me.

only my rage. only my darkness. darkness.
