All along the west
we made cities where kids fear regret and they will do whatever to keep from dying but I don't know where they get the idea that we are all not the same and anything less is dying we try to objectify the youth til there's nothing left for them to say we try to identify with you til there's nowhere left for them to go

remains the idea that we were right when we left but nothing is safe from death the kids believe that finding the place we belong is far away
