"Love, Sweet Death"

Red sand over my hands, suddenly it's gone, I feel the heat of sun and it's hard to believe things come and go in one beat it's so hard to achieve I need to hear your cry

Once I lived one life and breathed love makes you feel in one pit where light fades in It used to be right until we crossed the line of fear and doubts broke all we built

Madness can destroy it all even the strongest love can reach a point when nobody knows what's right or wrong Just feel the time goes by I've reached the limit inside black shadows that come and you don't know where to hide at all

Feel the strenght death has that scratches inside your soul see if it's worth it, no one decides you have the last word

I'm here, still in this shore asking why, all that I hear is the storm it's still hard to believe, no one hears my claims should I turn back and keep that sweet thing in my hands
