I am not me, Iâ€™m everyone
Just as all the stars are suns
Burned in the space of second thought
I own a flame that canâ€™t go on
I see whatâ€™s here but not behind
All of the men, all of their eyes
I am not me, Iâ€™m everyone
She said to me, she said to me

You are now what you have once been
On earth as it is in heaven

I am not here, Iâ€™m everywhere
Just as all my thoughts are air
Thrown in the sky and scattered far
Like 13 arrows and 13 stars
The eagle strangles alibis
The truth becomes my battle-cry
I am not here, Iâ€™m everywhere
She said to me, she said to me

The men who build up walls
But whoâ€™ve taken off the ceiling
Wonâ€™t be any drier when it rains
Theyâ€™ve built celestial halls
But theyâ€™ve forgotten the feeling
Of what itâ€™s like to see the Earth from space
Iâ€™ve traveled many lifetimes
Just to be here for this evening
I just canâ€™t ever seem to go away
So I wait on my knees
And I wade through all the suffering
Waiting for the simple to grow
